

Pozieres Falls Into Hands of British in Desperate Struggle

Captured From Germany After Three Days of Hand-to-Hand Fighting-- Many Prisoners are Taken

RUSSIAN ADVANCE PROGRESSES RAPIDLY

London, July 26.—(By United Press)—After three days of desperate hand-to-hand fighting the falling of houses and the crumbling of masonry the Anzac soldiers of Great Britain have finally taken the whole of the village of Pozieres. "The whole of the village of Pozieres is now in our hands," General Sir Douglas Haig reported briefly today.

"Westward Territorials have further advanced capturing two strong trenches and a number of prisoners, including five officers. Elsewhere there is no change." The capturing of the whole of Pozieres drives the German forces, fighting in the salient, from Thiepval and Pozieres. It was noted here today that the Territorials having ejected the Teutons from the village might begin westward encircling movements menacing the enemy contained in this loop of the line. The retirement from this curve is expected.

A further British envelopment movement eastward from Thiepval was anticipated today, to increase the pressure on this "kink" in the line, forcing the Germans to tighten themselves out by a retreat. Desperate fighting which has resulted in the ejection of the Germans from this French village, occurred, and an important point on the Highway toward Bapume was gained. It was the objective of the first great thrust of the British offensive.

Late last week British and New Zealand soldiers gained a foothold in the village itself. A series of German counter-attacks failed to dislodge them. Clinging desperately to the make-shift barriers of the south-east part of the town—barriers for the most part made by the crumbled houses—the British force stubbornly repulsed their assailants, and thoroughly pushed them back inch by inch. Machine guns fire was incessant, save when the forces from both sides swarmed out of their barriers and with clubs, rifles and bayonets swept back and forth in hand-to-hand grips. Threatened for weeks, the Germans had time to make emplacements in houses for their machine guns and to buttress up their positions with concrete and steel.

They turned a wind mill on the northwest of the town into a veritable fortress, from which machine guns rattled death. Nearby was a cemetery and among the graves of the dead were placed the terrible modern death dealing instruments of war. The cemetery is now a shambale above the earth.

Turks Evacuate Town
Reports from the wireless press in Rome today say that the Turks have evacuated their Erzendan in the fact of the Grand Duke Nicholas' drive.

Berlin Admits Loss
Berlin, July 26.—(By United Press)—"After stubborn fight, the British have established themselves in Pozieres," a German statement declared today of the war office. The enemy's attacks were repulsed in Fourcaux woods near Longueval and Trones Woods, and it was claimed by the war office that "a small advance against the French forces entrenched on Hill 304."

Russians Advancing
Petrograd July 26.—The Grand Duke Nicholas and his army have completed nearly one-fourth of the journey to Angora the eastern terminus of the railroad which leads to Constantinople, the immediate objective of the Russian advance. Russian troops are forcing back the demoralized Turkish forces, and estimated to be almost the record for quick advance. The greater portion of the advance has been almost as of a marching army in peaceful times. Enguan is about to fall into Russian hands, and apparently the Grand Duke's troops will have little difficulty in pressing onward. So far the Grand Duke has made a phenomenal advance inasmuch as no railroads have aided in maintaining his supplies.

Business Men Decide Not To Abandon Proposition To Buy Park--Attend Meeting Tonight

Proposition to Be Pushed to a Successful End

Business Men Decide Not to Abandon Idea But See It Through

TWENTY-FIVE PRESENT

Twenty-five of the business men of Clearfield met in the Arbitration room of the court house last evening to discuss the proposition to buy the Clearfield Driving Park and to convert it into a modern fair and recreation grounds. The proposition which is being pushed by the Clearfield Chamber of Commerce has met with several reverses but with the more influential business men of the town determined to "put it through," it is now positive that the park will be bought.

The meeting last night was a gathering of those interested in the Clearfield Park and Fair associations and was presided over by J. P. O'Laughlin, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce who opened it with a short address giving the purpose of the meeting. The meeting was supposed to be held last Friday night but on account of the electric lights throughout the town being out, it was necessary to postpone it until last evening.

Every person present, in enthusiastic speeches expressed their favor of the proposition to buy the park and announced that they were all back of it and willing to put up capital, the majority of which has already been raised. Many more business men who were unable to be there, sent in messages saying they were in favor of it.

E. E. Jameson and T. L. Wall spoke on the Agricultural Fair to be held in September and reported that much progress had been made. A remarkable amount of work has been accomplished considering the amount of time which has been spent in boosting the fair. They predicted that there would be the largest crowds ever seen in Clearfield, in attendance at the fair and also that the exhibits would be as good as at any large and long established fair.

Many addresses were made on the proposition to buy the grounds. All were determined to buy the park for the town. It was decided positively not to abandon the idea but to push it through to a successful completion. With this in mind, the meeting was adjourned, another to be held tonight when a final effort will be made to purchase the grounds.

PRESBYTERIANS HOLD ANNUAL S. S. PICNIC

Large Crowds Turn Out in Spite of Inclement Weather

Despite the weather there was a fine turn out at the Presbyterian Primary Sunday school picnic held yesterday at the Driving park. A hundred scholars and teachers met at the primary room yesterday morning about 10:30 and were taken to the picnic in automobiles. The white house and pavilion afforded an excellent place for the children to play games and for the boys to have a ball game. After enjoying a fine time the picnicers departed for their homes in autos about 4 o'clock.

GIRLS LEAVE FOR CAMPING TRIP AT WEILDER CAMP

Camp is Situated on Penfield Road at Head of Moose Creek

A party of girls chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Estep are spending the week camping at the beautiful stone house on the Penfield road at the head of Moose creek. The campers are enjoying all the pleasures of camp life. It is a most beautiful place and affords all the advantages of what a camp should be.

The party includes the Misses Emma Brown, Kathryn and Anna Fitzmaurice, Charlotte Dunlap, Ursula Murray, Ruth Daugherty, Delia Beahan, Elva McGee and Caroline Thorn and Miss McGovern has charge of the culinary department.

The Need of Public Park Keenly Felt Here Now

Proposition to Get One Will be Presented At Meeting Tonight

REASONS FOR BUYING

The most important civic proposition which has been presented to the residents of Clearfield in the past decade, will either be rejected or accepted at the meeting tonight, when a final effort will be made to secure the Driving park where the county fair, athletic contests public and private gatherings can be held.

The importance of securing this site for the town is not realized by the residents. The one great need of this town is a recreation place and amusement park, a place which will attract people here and once attracted will remain. This park is what will do these two things for the town and it is up to the people of Clearfield to secure this site.

The Progress printed a conversation of a travelling man and a Clearfield booster, which was overheard by another booster but one who realizes the necessity of a place where strangers can spend their time in amusing themselves. This conversation was only one of a great many which are heard daily about the same proposition. Everyone admits Clearfield is a most delightful city in which to live and that it is very progressive, equipped with all modern improvements and anxious to do anything to better itself, but it is lacking of a public park where a stranger can spend his spare time. They say Clearfield is dead and that it is very hard to "kill time" here. Clearfield is not dead nor even dormant but it needs some place where one can "kill time" without sleeping.

Tonight is the time to secure that place by attending the meeting and helping financially to secure the Clearfield Driving park as a public park for Clearfield. Only a few thousand dollars more are needed to make the purchase and it is not the wish of the Chamber of Commerce to have the big business interests put up all the capital to put through this proposition. Every hundred dollars counts, so if you have a hundred, it should go into the Clearfield park association and secure one first mortgage bond. Help boost the proposition by attending the meeting tonight whether you can invest or not. Good music will be played to entertain you, your wife and children.

WOMEN DRUNKARDS MORE PERSISTENT THAN MEN

Denver, Colo., July 26.—(By United Press)—Drunkennes among women has been slower to decrease under the state prohibition law than among men, juvenile court authorities said here today.

Prohibition has cut down the number of cases before the various city courts, 75 per cent. Habitual men drunkards have almost disappeared. While drinking by women shows a marked decrease the percentage of habitual "woman drunks" who have reformed falls much below that of the men.

Juvenile court officer John Phillips, who meets these cases because children generally suffer when their parents get drunk, said women become liquor victims through environment, despondency and out of revenge.

"Once a woman is cursed with this habit," said Phillips "her downfall is much faster than a man's because of her frail physical makeup. Women addicted to both the liquor and tobacco habits, it is almost impossible to cure."

SERVICES OF GUARDS A NECESSITY, SAYS PRESIDENT

Washington, July 26.—(By United Press)—That the services of the National Guard on the border are "a necessity to the United States" in "protecting the country," and not merely for the "purpose of drill," was explained today in a letter written by President Wilson to Mrs. Henry Smith of Willimac, Indiana.

Grand Concert To Boost Fair Meeting Tonight

Men, Women and Children Invited to Attend The Concert

MEETING STARTS 8:30

At the meeting of the Clearfield Fair and Park associations held last evening for the purpose of discussing the proposition to buy the Clearfield Driving park and convert it into a public fair grounds and recreation place, it was decided to hold another meeting tonight when the final effort will be made to interest more people. Men, women and children are invited to attend this meeting and hear the cream of Clearfield's musicians give a concert. Two bands will be there and not only classical music will be played but also popular selections which will entertain all classes of people.

The meeting will be held in the court room and will start at eight thirty o'clock with a concert by one of the bands. The meeting is public and is being held to consider a proposition which will be of great benefit to every resident of Clearfield.

The meeting will be presided over by J. P. O'Laughlin and beside a short address by him only two or three other men will speak. Everyone will be given a chance to express their idea of the proposition. Everyone is in favor of it and should be willing to support it financially. Be sure to attend the meeting and hear the grand concert by two of Clearfield's bands in the court room, starting at eight thirty o'clock sharp.

MAN FALLS FROM BRIDGE ON WAY HOME FROM WORK

William Maglison is Badly Bruised as Result of Accident.

Becoming overbalanced while riding a bicycle over the railroad bridge in the N. Y. C. yards, William Maglison fell from the bridge and sustained numerous bruises on his face and body and narrowly escaped serious injury. Maglison is employed at the round house and as his custom was riding the bicycle home over the bridge. No cause for his falling can be given except that he became overbalanced.

He was found ten minutes after the accident when A. C. Kennedy was returning home from work about 6:15 o'clock. He was unconscious but soon was revived and taken to his home where it was found no serious injury had been sustained.

EIGHT HUNDRED EMPLOYEES OF CITY STRIKE TODAY

City Employees Demand Increase of Wage of 5c An Hour

Pittsburgh, July 26.—(By United Press)—A strike of 800 city employees, including teamsters, street sweepers, park laborers, and other workmen. Nearly all city work is at a standstill. The strikers are all members of the local union of American Federation of Labor, and demand an increase of wage of 5c an hour, abolition of white uniforms and time and a half pay for overtime. While the city workers have threatened to strike for some time, their action today caught the city administration unprepared, and it is not expected any movement will be made toward settlement until tomorrow.

REMARKABLE CASE OF COW GIVING BIRTH TO TRIPLETS

Mifflin, July 26.—(By United Press)—Farmers in this section flocked to the farm of Robert Breily, in order to see three calves born of a gurnsey cow last night. This is the first instance in this neighborhood of a cow giving birth to triplets.

CARRANZA GIVES WIDE BERTH FOR AMERICAN ARMY

Gen. Trevino Withdraws Cavalry From Vicinity of Punitive Expedition

Guards Are Expected to Remain on Border Until Late in Fall--There Will be No Repetition of Carranza Incident.

Columbus, N. M., July 26.—(By United Press)—Carranzistas soldiers in north Chihuahua are giving the American forces a wide berth according to reports received here today. General Trevino has withdrawn his cavalry patrol from the immediate vicinity of the American expedition. General Pershing's scouts have not noticed any Mexican troops for many days, and fears that a repetition of the Carranza incident are almost entirely dissolved. Whether the de facto government's troops have been withdrawn and the Villistas company ordered south is not known.

Harrisburg, July 26.—(By United Press)—National guard circles expect orders at any time at the Ninth Infantry headquarters at Wilkes-Barre, converting the regulars to field artillery, in a few days. This alleged report is the first step in forming a new division of the guard. Official confirmation has not been given. The third brigade consists of the ninth and thirteenth infantry and Williamsport battalion, and is the Pennsylvania guard organized and not in service at the border.

Washington, July 26.—(By United Press)—Indicated by congress of the possibilities that the national guard along the border may be maintained until late in the fall, the senate this afternoon passed an amendment by which guardsmen may cast their vote at the border. This was to be adopted as an amendment to the general army bill now near passage.

CAPT. KOENIG FEARS ENGLISH PATROL WILL CROSS LIMIT

Baltimore, July 26.—(By United Press)—Capt. Koenig and his crew has one besetting fear today over the success of the return trip of the submarine freighter Deutschland, and that was the possibility that the allied patrol off the Virginia coast would be so zealous to capture the submarine that they would overstep the three mile limit law. The mysterious maneuvers of the guardships, and the contraction of their lines, furnishes the basis for their fears.

Boston, July 26.—(By United Press)—Reports of the quarantine station showed the Massachusetts Bay lying in a calm under a fog, and no reports or rumors have been circulated of the arrival of the German submarine, Bremen, the sister ship to the Deutschland.

NOTHING DEFINITE REACHED IN REGARD TO BLACK LIST

British Government to Make an Explanation of its Black List

Washington, July 26.—(By United Press)—The British government will make a detailed explanation of the existence of its black list, by the house of commons in a day or two, it was officially announced at the British embassy today. American Ambassador Page notified the state department that he had had several conversations at the foreign office in regard to the black list, but no definite understanding has been reached.

FIFTH CASE OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS IN PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, July 26.—(By United Press)—Another case of infantile paralysis, the fifth in this city in 30 days, was reported to the health department today. The last victim is a 19 month old Italian boy.

HOW TO CONTROL POTATO BUGS BY EXTENSION AGENT

Bugs Are Causing Great Damage to Crops Throughout County, Says Agent

Two Methods Are Explained--Is to Pick Bugs and Second is to Sprinkle Plants With Insect Powder

Colorado Potato Beetles, commonly called potato bugs, are causing considerable annoyance and loss to the farmers in Clearfield county. Two methods are being employed to combat these insects: (1) By picking the beetles off the plants. (2) By application of an insect powder to the vines.

The first method is laborious, except in small patches, but has the advantage of being entirely safe. The small second crop of bugs usually follows the first picking due to hatching of eggs that are left on the leaves.

Paris Green is a very effective poison and is one commonly used in the county. It is a combination of arsenic and copper, and the commercial product usually contains a small amount of soluble arsenic which will burn the foliage. To reduce this effect a small amount of freshly slaked lime should be added to either a solution or powder application of paris green.

Arsenate of lead is much less injurious to potato foliage and has the advantage of sticking better than paris green. It may be prepared either in powder or paste form. Both forms are equally effective when used in the proper proportions. Arsenate of lead is largely displacing paris green as an insect poison.

The following formulas give the proper proportions in which to use these poisons:

- (1) 1/4 pound paris green
2 lbs. freshly slaked lime
50 gallons of water, or Bordeaux mixture.
- (2) 3 pounds Arsenate of Lead (paste) or
1 1/2 pounds Arsenate of Lead (powder)
50 gallons of water, or Bordeaux mixture.

The vines should be thoroughly sprayed or sprinkled with either of above solutions.

The Bordeaux mixture mentioned in the above formula is a standard fungicide and is the most efficient spray for potatoes. It consists of caustic or lump lime, copper sulphate, or blue vitrol and water. The proportion for potatoes is:

- 5 lbs lime
5 lbs copper sulphate
50 gallons of water.

It is prepared in the following manner. Suspend 5 pounds of copper sulphate crystal in 5 gallons of water, until dissolved, this usually requires several hours. Add to this solution 20 gallons of water.

The time is placed in a receptacle and covered with enough water to slake it, after which 25 gallons of lime water are made.

The solutions should be thoroughly stirred, and poured through a strainer at the same time. This serves to both strain and mix the solutions. Bordeaux should be bluish white in color and should be applied as soon as possible after being made.

Thoroughly spraying with Bordeaux is highly recommended as it not only protects the vines against early and late blight, but is believed to stimulate tuber formation.

To protect against blight, spraying should begin when the plants are from 6 to 8 inches high, and applications should be made every two or three weeks.

To use Bordeaux effectively a high power sprayer is necessary. It is difficult to reach all parts of the plant with sprinkling can.

The thorough use of Bordeaux mixture with the addition of arsenate of lead, when potato bugs appear is considered the best method of controlling late blight and potato bugs, the two worst enemies of the potato crop.

Bulletin 140 issued by the Pennsylvania Experiment Station, State College, Pa., deals entirely with potato diseases. It will be sent free upon application.

BOUQUETS AND BRICKBATS.

The Get Acquainted Edition brought forth several press comments which are appreciated.

REFLECTS CREDIT.

The big Get Acquainted Edition of The Clearfield Progress was put in circulation yesterday. It is a 56-page number, full of historical, biographical, commercial and interesting information relative to all parts and all classes of Clearfield County business, professional and active life. It is a very creditable enterprise and reflects much credit on the promoters and on the office of publication. It is likewise well worth preserving—Clearfield Republican.

HIGHLY CREDITABLE PUBLICATION.

The Clearfield Progress yesterday issued their "Get Acquainted" Edition and it proved to be a highly creditable publication. It consisted of 56 pages and contained an interesting history of the development of Clearfield and Clearfield County. It also contained the pictures of many of our prominent citizens. Our contemporary has every reason to feel proud over the success of the venture.—Public Spirit.

STILL DYSPEPTIC.

The Progress' "Get Acquainted" Edition is a big paper, full of portraits which are hard to make fit the persons for whom they were intended. The edition was issued by a firm that doesn't do any charitable work and The Progress isn't to be held responsible for the errors in the edition.—Curwensville Herald.

PROGRESS WELL NAMED.

The Clearfield Progress "Get Acquainted" Edition has reached the Gazette and Bulletin. It is an agreeable surprise. There are fifty-six pages of real, up-to-date newspaper—the kind one would expect of a big metropolitan plant rather than that of an interior city—It is a big advertisement for The Progress—an evidence of real prosperity—but a bigger advertisement for Clearfield town. The Progress is well named.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

A FINE EDITION.

We congratulate the Clearfield Progress on the excellency of its "Get Acquainted" Edition issued on Thursdays of last week. Its 56 pages, nicely illustrated, gave a valuable fund of information along various lines relating to the interests of Clearfield and other parts of the county.—Philipsburg Daily Journal.

CREDIT TO TOWN.

The Clearfield Progress, one of the progressive papers of that thriving town, issued a large "Get Acquainted" Edition last Thursday, July 13. It certainly is a credit to the management of The Progress and to the town. It consists of 56 pages full of photographs of people from this whole section, including historical, biographical, commercial and interesting information from all parts of Clearfield County and Philipsburg. We congratulate the Progress and hope that it may be the means of putting that thriving little city on the map, the same as Philipsburg.—Philipsburg Ledger.

CLEVERLY GOTTEN UP.

The Clearfield Progress issued a 56-page "Get Acquainted" Edition Thursday that was very cleverly gotten up. It contained besides ads, cuts and writeups on several prominent residents of Clearfield County.—Jersey Shore Herald.

Today's Geographic Study of The Great European War Zone

Following the news of the arrival of the sixth contingent of Russian troops in France, the National Geographic Society has issued a war geography bulletin on Archangel as the probable port of embarkation for these subjects of the Czar and for any others who during the next two months may be sent to join the French in the trenches of Champagne.

"Supposed to be open to navigation from May to October, but actually free of ice for barely three months of that time, Archangel could not have been the starting point for Russian troops which reached Marseilles early in April. These more recent arrivals, however, probably avoided the long trip overland from European Russia to Manchuria and thence through the sea of Japan, the China Seas, the Indian Ocean, the Red Sea, the Suez Canal and the Mediterranean. A journey of 17,500 miles. The Archangel voyage is simpler, shorter and safer.

"A town of less than 40,000 inhabitants at the outbreak of the war, Archangel is Russia's most accessible European port of communication with her allies. It has increased enormously in importance since the declarations of war in August 1914.

"Archangel first came in touch with the outside world in 1553 when the English sailor, Sir Richard Chancellor, while attempting a Northeast passage to India, arrived at the black haven on the sea appropriately called White. Ivan the Terrible summoned the stranger to Moscow, 700 miles to the south, and welcomed him to Russia. Thirty years later a town was established at this harbor and for the next hundred years it was the Muscovite kingdom's only seaport, the chief doorway of trade with England and Holland.

"When Peter the Great began to build and beautify his new capital, St. Petersburg, he diverted much of Archangel's trade to the Baltic, but there was consolation for the White Sea port in being designated the capital of the province of the same name, a province equalling in square miles the aggregate areas of France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, England, Scotland and Wales, but with less than half a million population. Of all this vast territory the area of arable land is less than 1-200 square miles, three-fourths of which is given over to pasturage. Considerably more than half of the province consists of extensive tundras, swamps, lakes and barren, rocky plains, while a third of the land is overgrown with forests, the property of the Crown. On the tundras, which are covered with lichens, reindeer find excellent pasturage, while the richer grazing land supports the splendid Holmager cattle, a breed attributed to Peter the Great who crossed the native herds with cattle imported from Holland. The only vegetables grown in this part of the Russian empire are turnips and potatoes.

"The city of Archangel stretches for five miles on the right bank of the Dvina river, which at this point, nearly 50 miles from its mouth, is two miles wide. In recent years the importance of the port has been magnified by the Duke of Alexander of Wurttemberg canal, which connects the Dvina with Petrograd, via the River Neva, and also with the vast basin of the Volga, the Mississippi river of Europe. The Dvina is itself a considerable waterway, being a hundred miles longer than the Hudson river, and with its tributary, the Sukhona, more than twice the length of that famous American waterway. Its flow is very slow, as the average fall per mile is not more than nine inches.

"Archangel gets its name from the Convent of Archangel Michael, at the south end of the town. In the principal cathedral of the city is a wooden cross fourteen feet high, carved by Peter the Great, who, it will be remembered, learned the use of the mallet and chisel while working as a shipwright in Holland after he ascended the throne.

"A famous religious institution reached by way of Archangel is the Solovetski monastery, one of the largest and wealthiest in Russia. Every year from 10,000 to 15,000 pilgrims pass through the port on their way to this retreat situated 166 miles distant, on a small island in the White Sea. The monastery is enclosed by lofty walls dating back to the sixteenth century, while the institution itself was established more than fifty years before Columbus discovered America."

BASEBALL BUNTS

NOTES OF THE MINOR LEAGUES

Denison, the 1915 pennant winner in the Western Association, is again showing the way in that organization.

The Texas league teams are staging a corking good race, with Waco, Houston and Fort Worth packed in together at the top.

Forty-two games postponed on account of bad weather gives an idea of what "Old Probs" has handed to the Central league so far this season.

Recent Western league averages show "Hank" Butcher, of Denver, the leading batsman, and Marty O'Toole, of Omaha, leading the list of pitchers.

Poor attendance at the home ground, caused the Burlington club to lose up the sponge and forfeit its Central league franchise.

The Kansas City Blues are showing surprising strength this season, putting up a hot fight every day in an effort to cop the American Association flag.

The Longhorns New York State have a championship seem to be all set to repeat this season. The "Bummers" are now out in front and traveling at a fast clip.

Harry Wolter, who is pastoring with the Los Angeles Pacific Coast league team this season, is showing the big league stuff that made him famous.

It looks to be all Nashville and New Orleans in the Southern league this year. Chatterbox has been coming forward of late, but the Vanders and Pelicans seem to have the class.

Pitchers Tom Rogers of the Nashville Southern league, and the world's record holder Cy Young and Adair Joss, who led the league in runs, were not named in the base game against Chattanooga.

The Augusta team, which finished at the top in the first half of the South Atlantic league season, is making a strong bid for second half honors. Unless the Georgians are stopped pretty soon there will be no post-season series in the Sally circuit.

Without the services of dependable heavies, "Iron Man" Joe McGinnity has had to jump in and pitch overtime in order to keep his Butte team up in the Northwestern league race.

Montreal has made a rapid climb in the International league race. Buffalo, Providence and Baltimore, the top line, will have to keep their weather eye peered on the Royals.

Worcester and Springfield are putting up a hot battle for the Eastern league batting honors. An odd feature of Springfield's recent work was topping the league in batting while tumbling last in fielding.

When Jerry Eldinger, the veteran Third League umpire, reached his fortieth birthday a few days ago he made his last decision in the league by calling himself out for good. He said that Jerry retires with considerable bank roll accumulated as a minor league umpire.

NATIONAL CONCLAVE OF WOMEN VOTERS.

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 26.—With delegates in attendance from twelve states and the territory of Alaska, the National Council of Women Voters assembled in Cheyenne today for its fourth annual convention. The membership of the council is confined to the women of the enfranchised states. The organization is strictly non-partisan and aims especially to educate women to use the ballot, the interest of the best legislation and to aid in extending equal suffrage throughout the country. Mr. Duma Smith De Voe, of Tacoma, is the president of the council and will preside over the four days' session.

WALLACETON

Well boys and fellow citizens the big Methodist Picnic Day will soon be held in our town. No preparations for any base ball. Should this big day be marred by no national sporting game; the crowd would not be so enthusiastic over the occasion. We will make an effort to have some fast clubs from neighboring towns cross bats on our ground. Some of the trolley clubs, Bigler, Woodland, or any of the handy clubs. This big time is a benefit to our M. E. Church and our people should put vim into energy and let out the spirit of the good will. Hurrah boys, come to the ball park. Let's not be old men. Let's wash in the fabled fountain and start the ball a rolling. Any clubs wishing to play here will see in this paper who will have charge of this end of the program by the next few days. Let all clubs be willing to ask us about big picnic day.

Quite a bunch of our boys were looking around Philipsburg on Saturday evening, guess there must be some attraction.

Joe Condriet has completed the excavating for the foundation of the new Vulcan Trading Co. store to be erected in our city in the near future. The location is in the center of the town and will greatly improve the looks of our burg. W. J. Usher, of Clearfield, is manager of this business throughout this section.

David Milligan has business at the burg on Saturday evening. Our new store keeper, Nello Glickpatrick, is the proud papa of a bouncing big baby boy. Nello says after while he will have a new clerk for his store.

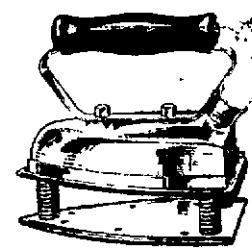

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Comfort, of Pittsburgh, are welcome visitors at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Reidy in this place. Mr. Comfort, one of our friends and who materially helped our base ball club for several seasons by his fast playing and hard hitting, holds the position of coach of all athletics and professor of science at the Fifth Avenue High School at Pittsburgh, where for several seasons under his skilled coaching and knowledge of base ball his Fifth Avenue club has won the Smoky City's base ball championship, for which he now wears the medal. Mr. Comfort is a good, free all around sort of a fellow, making a host of friends wherever his acquaintance extends. His several years of continued success at the Fifth Avenue High Schools tells plainly of his ability to successfully fill the requirements of this responsible calling. His better half, one of our town girls, is held in high esteem by every one forming her acquaintance.

READY FOR LAND DRAWING.

Spokane, Wash., July 26.—Thousands of home-seekers are on the tip of expectation today, for within another twenty-four hours they will learn their luck in the matter of securing a desirable homestead in the Colville reservation recently declared open to settlement. John McPhaul, superintendent of the opening and sale of the reservation lands, has completed all arrangements for the great drawing, which will commence tomorrow. Cards containing the names of more than 20,000 men and women who filed at the five registration points, have been placed in sealed cans and are now in the custody of Superintendent McPhaul. Tomorrow morning the cans will be publicly opened and the drawing will commence. The person whose name is first drawn will be given first choice in the selection of a homestead. The drawing will continue until all the parcels of land have been allotted.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

How can a twelve volt generator be used with a six volt storage battery and six volt lamps?

It is a rather difficult proposition to use a twelve volt generator with a six volt battery. A twelve volt generator, if its fields are connected in series, can sometimes be changed to a six volt by connecting the field in parallel. The generator can also be made to develop six volts by cutting the speed in two. When this is done the generator, battery and lamp will work together, although the capacity of the generator will be limited to a considerable extent.

Can you tell me how to line up the front wheels of a car?

In lining up the front wheels the first thing is to make sure that the wheel bearings are properly adjusted. They should be just tight enough so that there is no side play in the wheels; but, on the other hand, they should not be so tight that the wheels bind and do not turn freely. This done, take a long stick or rod that will reach from the inner edge of one rim across to the inner edge of the other. Then measure the distance between the rim edges horizontally back of the center of the wheel. Mark this distance on the stick, and then try it on the rims horizontally in front of the wheel centers. The front distance should be one-fourth inch to three-eighths inch less than the distance across the back of the hubs. If you find these distances are not correct you can get the proper adjustment by taking up or letting out on the steering cross rod, which parallels the axle and runs across just back of it. First loosen the lock nut at one of the ends, then take out the pin that goes through the steering arm and yoke and screw the yoke out or in, as the case requires. Then check the wheel alignment again and tighten the lock nut.

My generator has stopped charging. I have tested the fuse and found it all right. I took the relay off, cleaned the brushes and commutator, then when it was started it charged, but the engine cut idle for a day, and when started again it failed to charge. On pressing the platinum points together on the automatic relay it did not show any discharge on the ammeter, but when I lighted the ammeter shows discharge. Can you tell me anything to do in this case?

Although you do not give sufficient data to diagnose accurately the trouble, the majority of similar complaints are due to loose connections. Therefore it is suggested that the first possible cause of the trouble is a break in the generator charging line. A loose connection at the relay or a loose or broken connection or broken wire in the generator charging line will, of course, prevent the generator from charging the battery and would prevent a discharge reading on the ammeter when the relay contact points are placed in contact.

You state that you have examined the relay fuse and found it all right. However, it is suggested that you pinch the fuse clips a little closer together to be sure that these clips are making good contact with the ends of the fuse.

A third possible cause of this trouble may be a small quantity of dirt or dust between the relay contacts. A very fine piece of sandpaper should be drawn lightly between the contacts and all dust carefully removed. A very small quantity of dust lodged between the points might prevent them from making good contact and would therefore prevent the generator from charging.

Could like to know the principle of operation of a gear pump. Will one be against a pressure of five kilograms?

The principle of a gear pump is simple, as it consists merely of two gears rotating within a chamber. The pump chamber is so arranged that the side of the two gears coming into mesh are in the intake compartment and coming out of mesh in the exhaust compartment. The oil is led in and as the gears come into mesh it is picked up in the clearance space between the teeth and thrown out on the other side. By a pressure of five kilograms it is presumed that you mean a pressure of five kilograms per square centimeter. This is equivalent to about seventy pounds per square inch, which is slightly above the capacity of the usual gear pump.

Which motor develops the most power, the valve in the head, the L head or the T head? Providing they are of equal size, how much per cent of power does the one develop over the other?

The valve in the head motor is generally credited with giving slightly more power for the same size and weight of motor than either the L head or T head. The T head comes second in the matter of power for piston displacement. The L head gives slightly less power, but weighs less than the T head. This, of course, is assuming they are equally well made and well designed. As to the per cent of advantage of the different types, this depends entirely on such things as timing valve sizes, port sizes, carburetion and a dozen other things.

I have heard that there is an acid solution or bath used by brass workers, clockmakers and others in which brass parts may be dipped and the brass will not be affected by the acid, which will however, remove all dirt, grease and tarnish and the brass will come out of the bath bright and clean. Can you give me the formula for this acid bath and instructions for its use, advising, also, whether it must be kept in lead or glass containers?

The parts to be cleaned are first dipped into a solution of hot lye and then dipped into what is known as a bright brass dip. This is made up as follows: Two parts sulphuric acid to one part nitric acid with a tablespoonful of salt to each three and one-half gallons of acid. Care must be used in mixing. Put the sulphuric acid in a jar first, then add the nitric acid. Let this stand until it stops working or fuming, then add the salt. The parts to be dipped should be dipped first into the hot lye solution and then into the acid solution. Immediately after the acid dip the parts should be rinsed in cold water and given a second dip into the acid and then into the cold water to rinse them off. After this they should be dipped into very hot water and thrown into sawdust to dry.

How can a machine with four square feet of head resistance travel faster than one with six square feet if the motor speeds are the same, as are also the weight of the machines, horsepower, gear ratios and size of wheels?

If the motor speeds are both the same and the gear ratios and size of wheels are both the same both machines must travel at the same speed regardless of any other factors.

Why do some of the manufacturers leave the intake closed for some time after the exhaust valve is closed? Do they not cut down on volumetric efficiency by doing so?

The reason for the delayed opening of the intake is to create a vacuum in the cylinder which will cause the inlet gases to rush in and fill the cylinder. It takes a noticeable amount of suction to overcome the inertia of the gases, and this vacuum is left for the purpose of overcoming this inertia.

MAN WHO DIED ON OPERATING

TABLE IS ALIVE TODAY
London, July 1—(By Mail)—Lance Corporal Mayes, Queen's Westminster regiment, lives today to be able to say that he died.

A German shell clipped off part of Mayes' right arm at Ypres last Christmas. Eventually he landed in a London hospital with a stump of an arm that threatened blood poison. An operation became necessary. Under an anaesthetic the soldier's heart collapsed and ceased to beat. The patient was dead. The surgeon in charge tried a quick experiment. He made an incision large enough to admit his hand in Mayes' side. He lifted the diaphragm, reached the heart and gently massaged the organ with his fingers. The heart responded and resumed pulsations.

Mayes is now on the road to complete recovery. In another month he will be wearing an artificial arm and learning to use it in a trade which he will be taught by the government.

SAM BERNARD, LAUGH PRODUCER, AT OPERA HOUSE

Celebrated Comedian Makes Screen Debut in a Typical Characterization, "Poor Schmaltz."

Sam Bernard, the irrepressible king of comedy, whom the Famous Players Film Co. induced to present his unequalled mirth-provoking talents on the screen, makes his first appearance before the motion picture public at Opera House tomorrow in a four-part film travesty, entitled "Poor Schmaltz."

This great comedian, in his first film impersonation, introduces a new type of comedy to the screen. As "Poor Schmaltz" he renders one of the most laughable characterizations of his brilliant career as the foremost exponent of eccentric comedy on the American stage. As the persecuted and persistent wooer of an American heiress, he presents one of the most humorous spectacles ever seen on the screen, and "Poor Schmaltz" may truly be termed Sam Bernard "in Dutch."

It requires four hilarious reels to complete "Poor Schmaltz's" distressing but exasperating funny adventures on the screen, and the humor grows until one is well-nigh exhausted with laughter.

The Famous Players Film Co. has selected "Poor Schmaltz" as the title of Mr. Bernard's first screen impersonation, because that was the character-name borne by the illustrious comedian in his greatest stage successes.

"Poor Schmaltz" was designed for laughing purposes only, and in this direction it succeeds howlingly. This great comedy attraction may be termed the most pretentious humorous feature ever presented on the screen, and will be seen at Opera House tomorrow.

MATTERS BABY CENTRAL FIGURE IN THIRD TRIAL

Mrs. Matters Charged With
Foisting Child As Spurious
Heir, Goes On Trial

CHILD BORN TO CANADIAN GIRL

Chicago, July 26.—(By United Press)—The famous Matters baby, who was cooed, gurgled and played with her toes through two court trials already, was the central figure in another court proceeding before Federal Judge Landis here today. "Margaret Bryan" who swore in court that the baby girl is here because she was the unwed war bride of the village blacksmith of her Canadian hometown, appeared to plead with the judge to let her have the tiny mite. The rich Mrs. Annie Dollie Ledgerwood Matters also claims to be the mother of the baby.

Mrs. Matters, charged with foisting the baby on her husband's estate as a spurious heir, is to go to trial again July 31, this time charged with perjury in connection with probate court records in the case. She was acquitted, several months ago, of the charge of foisting the child on the Matters estate.

The Matters baby case, to date, has unfolded a story that would furnish a do Mauseausant with plots for a dozen novels. It began when December mated with June—when Frederick Matters, Arcola, Ill., moving picture magnate, a man nearing seventy, married Anna Dollie Ledgerwood, a woman of twenty.

And then Matters died, leaving a $200,000 estate. A few weeks after his death, Mrs. Matters appeared with a baby. It was hers, she said, born to her at Misericordia hospital, at Ottawa, Canada. Other heirs to the estate questioned her claim of a posthumous heir. In the first place, they said, parenthood was a physical impossibility to Matters.

Physicians came from the hospital and testified for Mrs. Matters. It was her baby, they said. Then, months later, Dr. L. C. Emile Bernard, chief obstetrician of the hospital, came to Chicago and said his conscience had troubled him, that he wanted to change his story.

This time he said he was telling the truth. The baby was not Mrs. Matters' at all. It was born to Margaret Bryan, a young Canadian girl, who had surrendered to love when the village blacksmith in her town went away to war with the Canadian contingent. The baby was taken from Margaret at its birth, Dr. Bernard said, and taken to a room where Mrs. Matters lay. Margaret was told her baby had died at birth. She lay helplessly and sadly in her cot in the public ward while Mrs. Matters, known to the "poor ward" as the "millionaire lady," crooned over the child.

Dr. Bernard detailed the surgical precautions that had been taken to keep it appear Mrs. Matters was the mother.

When the trial of Mrs. Matters on a criminal charge began, the state brought a surprise. It brought Margaret Bryan to Chicago, and the pretty Canadian girl told the jury her story. But it did not convict Mrs. Matters.

Then Margaret went to Federal Judge Landis, and told him she wanted her baby. A federal status prohibits "immigration" of a child without consent of its parents. If Margaret was the real mother, the law applied to the Matters baby. So Judge Landis ordered the child taken from Mrs. Matters, placed in a local institution, and visiting hours so arranged that Margaret could see it each morning and Mrs. Matters each afternoon. There the case rested when Mrs. Matters went to trial again today.

Both women have "mothered" the child since it was taken from Mrs. Matters. Both have sought to win its love. It is about a year old now—a girl baby—and seems to know each of its "mothers" equally well. If Margaret wins it, when Judge Landis gives his decision after the present trial, it will go to a little Canadian town and live in comparative poverty. If Mrs. Matters wins, then the baby will have silks and satins and automobiles and debutante's dances.

GENERAL DODD RETIRED AFTER 40 YRS. SERVICE

Dare-Devil Dodd Lead Cavalry
Brigade of Punitive Expedition
Into Mexico

WON FAME IN INDIAN FIGHTS

Washington, July 26.—The official life of a gallant old warrior expired today, when, by reason of the fact that this is the sixty-fourth anniversary of his birth, Brigadier General George A. Dodd, the commander of the cavalry brigade of the punitive expedition into Mexico last spring, was retired from active service. In the ordinary routine of military affairs Gen. Dodd would have been retired with the rank of colonel. Only a few weeks ago, by order of the President, the higher rank of brigadier-general was conferred upon him in recognition of his distinguished services in Mexico, particularly his cavalry dash at Guerrero last March, when he went into successful action against a superior force of bandits after a ride of 55 miles in seventeen hours.

In the forty years of his service in the regulars, "Dare-Devil" Dodd, as he is familiarly known, was seen as much hard fighting as any officer of the service. He is a native of Pennsylvania and was appointed to the Military Academy from that state. Immediately after his graduation in 1876 he was assigned as a second lieutenant to the famous Third Cavalry, the command that has seen more hard service on the border in the past four years than any regiment in the army.

At West Point his classmates included Hugh L. Scott, now a major-general and Chief of the General Staff; Brig. Gen. Ernest A. Garlington, the Inspector-General of the army, and Herbert W. Slocum, now commanding the Twelfth Cavalry, the attack upon which at Columbus, N. M., was the immediate cause of the expedition being sent into Mexico last spring.

The first ten years of Gen. Dodd's service were ten years of never-ceasing activity for the most part in actions against the hostile Indians of the Far West. He served through the Powder River expedition of 1877, helped to keep the Indians of the Red Cloud Agency quiet in 1878, won the commendation of his superiors for gallant service in the Ute expedition of 1879, was in command of a famous company of scouts in the Arizona outbreaks of 1883, and helped suppress Indian disturbances in what is now the State of Oklahoma in November, 1893.

Gen. Dodd was a captain in the Fourth Cavalry in the Spanish War. He was in the battle of San Juan and participated in the siege and operations against Santiago. He was commended for gallantry in the face of the enemy in the Santiago campaign. When he returned to the United States in the latter part of 1898 he was sent to Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., for a tour of duty, which lasted but a few weeks, when he was ordered to the Philippines, where he participated in the expedition sent into northern Luzon under Maj. Gen. Young.

This expedition he took part in twelve battles, and again won the commendation of his superiors for gallant and meritorious work. He was recommended by Gen. Young for brevet major for gallant conduct in action at San Nicolas, P. I., and subsequently Gen. Wheaton for conspicuous gallantry in action at Aligangan, P. I. Gen. Dodd returned to the United States from the Philippines in 1901 and again was sent for a tour of duty at Fort Ethan Allen. He was ordered West, in 1903, to command Fort Assiniboine, Mont. On July 28, 1904, he was made a lieutenant colonel and assigned as second in command of the Tenth Cavalry, one of the two famous negro mounted commands of the regular army. He was made a colonel in April, 1905, and put in command of the Twelfth Cavalry.

He was commanding the Second Cavalry Brigade on the border at the time of the Columbus raid. When President Wilson ordered Gen. Funston to send a punitive expedition into Mexico he promptly gave the command of the forces to Dodd, for he knew, as his brother officers expressed it at the time, "that old Dodd was the man who could successfully cope with the Mexican bandits if anybody could."

CURWENSVILLE

Rev. Joseph Cooke, pastor of the First Baptist church, spent Tuesday in DuBois, attending a meeting of the W. C. T. U.

Curwensville baseball enthusiasts are scheduled to cross bats with a club hailing from Surveyor on Friday afternoon at the Athletic Park grounds.

C. F. Hayes, the Bridgeport miller, accompanied by one of his sons, motored to several towns in Centre county on Tuesday. They expect to spend several days in that locality.

The Curwensville National bank directors held their annual monthly meeting in the bank building on Tuesday night. Considerable important business was transacted.

Mr. and Mrs. John Marcus and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bestis, all of Erie, motored to Curwensville on Saturday and spent Sunday and Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Blair, Anderson street.

Miss Aline Blake left today for Emporium where she will visit a school friend for a few days, after which both young ladies will motor to Olean, N. Y., and other points, calling on other school chums and acquaintances.

"Singin' Skule" by professional and local talent, is booked to come off at the opera house on Friday evening of this week. The proceeds will go to the L. A. S. of the M. E. church, under whose auspices the entertainment is being held.

Pastor Hawkins of Grace Lutheran church, wishes to announce that there will be preaching in his church on Saturday evening. Sunday will be holy communion, after which some half dozen new members will be formally admitted to full membership.

Since the demise of Samuel S. Moore, the Second ward has been without an assessor. There are several applicants for the position, namely: Henry Stockbridge and John I. Thompson. Your correspondent is informed that Judge Bell will make the appointment sometime during the month of August.

A Russian-Polish priest preached to the men of Summit sole leather tannery in front of that plant on Tuesday noon. The tenor of his remarks were along the lines of the horrors of the European war and the havoc it was working in the overriden countries, from which a good many of the employees of that plant hail.

Curwensville lodge Knights of Pythias expect to have a very good and an unusual session in their rooms on Thursday evening. Visitors from Clearfield and Glen Richey are expected to be present in numbers. The Knights rank will be conferred on three Esquires, after which several good speeches are booked to take place. All members of the order are most cordially invited to be present.

Walter Brome, of Brookville, who is interested in developing a paint seam and mine along Anderson creek, near the Milligan siding, was in town for a brief period Tuesday. He gave out the information that his siding to the mine had been completed and that a car would be placed for loading a test shipment sometime during the week. He is confident that he will receive a very satisfactory analysis, and that final work will soon commence on the ground for a permanent factory.

Augustus W. Thompson, born and raised in Curwensville and a resident for many years, put one over on his friends and relatives. Gus was considered to be in the old bachelor class, but without any notice to those who ought to have been in touch with his private and domestic affairs, he quietly wedded Miss Dolly Marie Dunmire, daughter of Z. A. Dunmire, of Summer Hill, near Portage, Pa., the event taking place on May 24th. He is a brother of Mrs. Harry Brown of this place and of Roll B. Thompson, of Clearfield.

Rev. W. V. Ganoe, a former minister of Curwensville, now on the superannuated list, visited his son Lieutenant Ganoe at the home of C. S. Russell this week. Last sabbath forenoon he occupied the M. E. pulpit and gave a talk on the education of the colored race in the south, he having spent last winter at Ashville, N. C., and gave that question considerable study and thought. Lieutenant Ganoe has been transferred from the army to instructor at West Point, and will leave for that point shortly. He had recently returned from service in Honolulu.

Miss Mae Kline returned today from a trip to Philadelphia, New York City and Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Davis, Miss Duella Varner, Mrs. Emma Davis attended the ball game at Woodland Saturday.

Isaac Butler, John S. Butler and Sheridan Wisor, Orvis Wisor and Hyde Goss attended the ball game at Woodland Saturday.

Mr. Burton and Willis Davis, David Wisor and son, Roy Wisor, were shopping in Clearfield Saturday.

A large number of friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Butler surprised them by gathering at their home on Main Street to help them celebrate their silver wedding. Everybody enjoyed themselves eating a nice dinner in the grove and greeting old acquaintances and making new ones. Some excellent music was rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ammerman. The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Knepp and sons, Clifford and Willis; Mrs. John Bumbarger, of Clearfield; Rev. and Mrs. I. W. Groh, Mr. and Mrs. John Wisor and daughter, Esther; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stone and daughter Lucy and granddaughter Alice Bumbarger, Mrs. Geo. Mason, of Woodland; Mr. and Mrs. George Ammerman and daughter, Frances, of West Decatur; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Shugart, of Stoneville; Mrs. Emma Davis, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. John McNulty and sons, Charles and Merle, of Love Joy.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goss and daughter, Lizzie, motored to Blue Ball Sunday evening.

Mrs. John Bumbarger returned to her home in Clearfield Monday after spending Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Harry Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. John McNulty returned to their home in Love Joy after spending a few days with Mrs. McNulty's mother, Mrs. Harry Butler, of this place.

Mrs. Emma Davis is spending a few days with her sons, Ephraim and Burton, of this place.

Burton Davis had a crew of men working the road which leads to his home a few days this week; the men completed a bridge over Long Run. Keep the good work up, you husters as the roads around this section need a lot of repairing.

"BUY A YARD OF LUMBER"

DEPARTMENT STORE SIGN

Chicago, July 26.—(By United Press)—Along with fancy ribbons, women's silk hose and sport shirts, lumber can now be bought over the counter at department stores, it was discovered here today.

It can be bought by the yard, odd lengths can be secured in the bargain basement, and various kinds of fancy grains are carried for the more particular lumber customers.

The reported went out to investigate. Entering a loop department store he queried the floor walker who conducted him to the "lumber yard."

"Yes, this is the lumber counter," said the sales girl, and the reporter learned that he could secure wood with which to make a kitchen cabinet or he might buy a piece with a knot in it out of which he could model a wooden leg.

"Lumber at three cents a stick," and "Buy a yard of Lumber" are examples of the bargain cards placed at the lumber counters.

Department store lumber yards are a reality in thirty six large cities in the country the store people here declared today. One western firm makes a specialty of jobbing this lumber, supplying odd lengths and short pieces of lumber that would otherwise go to waste.

NEW HAVEN WOULD RETAIN BOAT LINE

New York, July 26.—Examiner

Howell, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, today begins the taking of testimony in this city on the application of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad to continue operation of its steamship line in New England. The Panama Canal act prohibits joint ownership of competing steamship and railway lines. The New Haven company contends that this prohibition does not apply to its lines.

Pozieres Falls Into Hands of British in Desperate Struggle

Captured From Germany After Three Days of Hand-to-Hand Fighting--Many Prisoners are Taken

RUSSIAN ADVANCE PROGRESSES RAPIDLY

London, July 26.—(By United Press)—After three days of desperate hand-to-hand fighting the falling of houses and the crumbling of masonry the Anzac soldiers of Great Britain have finally taken the whole of the village of Pozieres. "The whole of the village of Pozieres is now in our hands," General Sir Douglas Haig reported briefly today.

"Westward Territorials have further advanced capturing two strong trenches and a number of prisoners, including five officers. Elsewhere there is no change." The capturing of the whole of Pozieres drives the German forces, fighting in the salient, from Thiepval and Pozieres. It was noted here today that the Territorials having ejected the Teutons from the village might begin westward encircling movements menacing the enemy contained in this loop of the line. The retirement from this curve is expected.

A further British envelopment movement eastward from Thiepval was anticipated today, to increase the pressure on this "kink" in the line, forcing the Germans to tighten themselves out by a retreat. Desperate fighting which has resulted in the ejection of the Germans from this French village, occurred, and an important point on the Highway toward Bapume was gained. It was the objective of the first great thrust of the British offensive.

Business Men Decide Not To Abandon Proposition To Buy Park--Attend Meeting Tonight

Proposition to Be Pushed to a Successful End

Business Men Decide Not to Abandon Idea But See It Through

TWENTY-FIVE PRESENT

Twenty-five of the business men of Clearfield met in the Arbitration room of the court house last evening to discuss the proposition to buy the Clearfield Driving Park and to convert it into a modern fair and recreation grounds. The proposition which is being boosted by the Clearfield Chamber of Commerce has met with several reverses but with the more influential business men of the town determined to "put it through," it is now positive that the park will be bought.

The meeting last night was a gathering of those interested in the Clearfield Park and Fair associations and was presided over by J. P. O'Laughlin, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce who opened it with a short address giving the purpose of the meeting. The meeting was supposed to be held last Friday night but on account of the electric lights throughout the town being out, it was necessary to postpone it until last evening.

Every person present, in enthusiastic speeches expressed their favor of the proposition to buy the park and announced that they were all back of it and willing to put up capital, the majority of which has already been raised. Many more business men who were unable to be there, sent in messages saying they were in favor of it.

E. E. Jameson and T. L. Wall spoke on the Agricultural Fair to be held in September and reported that much progress had been made. A remarkable amount of work has been accomplished considering the amount of time which has been spent in boosting the fair. They predicted that there would be the largest crowds ever seen in Clearfield, in attendance at the fair and also that the exhibits would be as good as at any large and long established fair.

Many addresses were made on the proposition to buy the grounds. All were determined to buy the park for the town. It was decided positively not to abandon the idea but to push it through to a successful completion. With this in mind, the meeting was adjourned, another to be held tonight when a final effort will be made to purchase the grounds.

PRESBYTERIANS HOLD ANNUAL S. S. PICNIC

Large Crowds Turn Out in Spite of Inclement Weather

Despite the weather there was a fine turn out at the Presbyterian Primary Sunday school picnic held yesterday at the Driving park. A hundred scholars and teachers met at the primary room yesterday morning about 10:30 and were taken to the picnic in automobiles. The white house and pavilion afforded an excellent place for the children to play games and for the boys to have a ball game. After enjoying a fine time the picnicers departed for their homes in autos about 4 o'clock.

GIRLS LEAVE FOR CAMPING TRIP AT WEILDER CAMP

Camp is Situated on Penfield Road at Head of Moose Creek

A party of girls chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Estep are spending the week camping at the beautiful stone house on the Penfield road at the head of Moose creek. The campers are enjoying all the pleasures of camp life. It is a most beautiful place and affords all the advantages of what a camp should be.

The party includes the Misses Emma Brown, Kathryn and Anna Fitzmaurice, Charlotte Dunlap, Ursula Murray, Ruth Daugherty, Della Beahan, Elva McGee and Caroline Thorn and Miss McGovern has charge of the culinary department.

The Need of Public Park Keenly Felt Here Now

Proposition to Get One Will be Presented At Meeting Tonight

REASONS FOR BUYING

The most important civic proposition which has been presented to the residents of Clearfield in the past decade, will either be rejected or accepted at the meeting tonight, when a final effort will be made to secure the Driving park where the county fair, athletic contests public and private gatherings can be held.

The importance of securing this site for the town is not realized by most of the residents. The one great need of this town is a recreation place and amusement park, a place which will attract people here and once attracted will remain. This park is what will do these two things for the town and it is up to the people of Clearfield to secure this site.

The Progress printed a conversation of a travelling man and a Clearfield booster, which was overheard by another booster but one who realizes the necessity of a place where strangers can spend their time in amusing themselves. This conversation was only one of a great many which are heard daily about the same proposition. Everyone admits Clearfield is a most delightful city in which to live and that it is very progressive, equipped with all modern improvements and anxious to do anything to better itself, but it is lacking of a public park where a stranger can spend his spare time. They say Clearfield is dead and that it is very hard to "kill time" here. Clearfield is not dead nor even dormant but it needs some place where one can "kill time" without sleeping.

Tonight is the time to secure that place by attending the meeting and helping financially to secure the Clearfield Driving park as a public park for Clearfield. Only a few thousand dollars more are needed to make the purchase and it is not the wish of the Chamber of Commerce to have the big business interests put up all the capital to put through this proposition. Every hundred dollars counts, so if you have a hundred, it should go into the Clearfield park association and secure one first mortgage bond. Help boost the proposition by attending the meeting tonight whether you can invest or not. Good music will be played to entertain you, your wife and children.

WOMEN DRUNKARDS MORE PERSISTENT THAN MEN

Denver, Colo., July 26.—(By United Press)—Drunkennes among women has been slower to decrease under the state prohibition law than among men, juvenile court authorities said here today.

Prohibition has cut down the number of cases before the various city courts, 75 per cent. Habitual men drunkards have almost disappeared. While drinking by women shows a marked decrease the percentage of habitual "woman drunks" who have reformed falls much below that of the men.

Juvenile court officer John Phillips, who meets these cases because children generally suffer when their parents get drunk, said women become liquor victims through environment, despondency and out of revenge.

"Once a woman is cursed with this habit," said Phillips "her downfall is much faster than a man's because of her frail physical makeup. Women addicted to both the liquor and tobacco habits, it is almost impossible to cure."

SERVICES OF GUARDS A NECESSITY, SAYS PRESIDENT

Washington, July 26.—(By United Press)—That the services of the National Guard on the border are "a necessity to the United States" in "protecting the country," and not merely for the "purpose of drill," was explained today in a letter written by President Wilson to Mrs. Henry Smith of Willimac, Indiana.

Grand Concert To Boost Fair Meeting Tonight

Men, Women and Children Invited to Attend The Concert

MEETING STARTS 8:30

At the meeting of the Clearfield Fair and Park associations held last evening for the purpose of discussing the proposition to buy the Clearfield Driving park and convert it into a public fair grounds and recreation place, it was decided to hold another meeting tonight when the final effort will be made to interest more people. Men, women and children are invited to attend this meeting and hear the cream of Clearfield's musicians give a concert. Two bands will be there and not only classical music will be played but also popular selections which will entertain all classes of people.

The meeting will be held in the court room and will start at eight thirty o'clock with a concert by one of the bands. The meeting is public and is being held to consider a proposition which will be of great benefit to every resident of Clearfield.

The meeting will be presided over by J. P. O'Laughlin and beside a short address by him only two or three other men will speak. Everyone will be given a chance to express their idea of the proposition. Everyone is in favor of it and should be willing to support it financially. Be sure to attend the meeting and hear the grand concert by two of Clearfield's bands in the court room, starting at eight thirty o'clock sharp.

MAN FALLS FROM BRIDGE ON WAY HOME FROM WORK

William Maglison is Badly Bruised as Result of Accident.

Becoming overbalanced while riding a bicycle over the railroad bridge in the N. Y. C. yards, William Maglison fell from the bridge and sustained numerous bruises on his face and body and narrowly escaped serious injury. Maglison is employed at the round house and as his custom was riding the bicycle home over the bridge. No cause for his falling can be given except that he became overbalanced.

He was found ten minutes after the accident when A. C. Kennedy was returning home from work about 6:15 o'clock. He was unconscious but soon was revived and taken to his home where it was found no serious injury had been sustained.

EIGHT HUNDRED EMPLOYEES OF CITY STRIKE TODAY

City Employees Demand Increase of Wage of 5c An Hour

Pittsburgh, July 26.—(By United Press)—A strike of 800 city employees, including teamsters, street sweepers, park laborers, and other workmen. Nearly all city work is at a standstill. The strikers are all members of the local union of American Federation of Labor, and demand an increase of wage of 5c an hour, abolition of white uniforms and time and a half pay for overtime. While the city workers have threatened to strike for some time, their action today caught the city administration unprepared, and it is not expected any movement will be made toward settlement until tomorrow.

REMARKABLE CASE OF COW GIVING BIRTH TO TRIPLETS

CARRANZA GIVES WIDE BERTH FOR AMERICAN ARMY

Gen. Trevino Withdraws Cavalry From Vicinity of Punitive Expedition

Guards Are Expected to Remain on Border Until Late in Fall--There Will be No Repetition of Carranza Incident.

Columbus, N. M., July 26.—(By United Press)—Carranzistas soldiers in north Chihuahua are giving the American forces a wide berth according to reports received here today. General Trevino has withdrawn his cavalry patrol from the immediate vicinity of the American expedition. General Pershing's scouts have not noticed any Mexican troops for many days, and fears that a repetition of the Carranza incident are almost entirely dissolved. Whether the de facto government's troops have been withdrawn and the Villistas company ordered south is not known.

Harrisburg, July 26.—(By United Press)—National guard circles expect orders at any time at the Ninth Infantry headquarters at Wilkes-Barre, converting the regulars to field artillery, in a few days. This alleged report is the first step in forming a new division of the guard. Official confirmation has not been given. The third brigade consists of the ninth and thirteenth infantry and Williamsport battalion, and is the Pennsylvania guard organized and not in service at the border.

Washington, July 26.—(By United Press)—Indicated by congress of the possibilities that the national guard along the border may be maintained until late in the fall, the senate this afternoon passed an amendment by which guardsmen may cast their vote at the border. This was to be adopted as an amendment to the general army bill now near passage.

CAPT. KOENIG FEARS ENGLISH PATROL WILL CROSS LIMIT

Baltimore, July 26.—(By United Press)—Capt. Koenig and his crew has one besetting fear today over the success of the return trip of the submarine freighter Deutschland, and that was the possibility that the allied patrol off the Virginia coast would be so zealous to capture the submarine that they would overstep the three mile limit law. The mysterious maneuvers of the guardships, and the contraction of their lines, furnishes the basis for their fears.

Boston, July 26.—(By United Press)—Reports of the quarantine station showed the Massachusetts Bay lying in a calm under a fog, and no reports or rumors have been circulated of the arrival of the German submarine, Bremen, the sister ship to the Deutschland.

NOTHING DEFINITE REACHED IN REGARD TO BLACK LIST

British Government to Make an Explanation of its Black List

Washington, July 26.—(By United Press)—The British government will make a detailed explanation of the existence of its black list, by the house of commons in a day or two, it was officially announced at the British embassy today. American Ambassador Page notified the state department that he had had several conversations at the foreign office in regard to the black list, but no definite understanding has been reached.

FIFTH CASE OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS IN PITTSBURGH

HOW TO CONTROL POTATO BUGS BY EXTENSION AGENT

Bugs Are Causing Great Damage to Crops Throughout County, Says Agent

Two Methods Are Explained--Is to Pick Bugs and Second is Sprinkle Plants With Insect Powder

Colorado Potato Beetles, commonly called potato bugs, are causing considerable annoyance and loss to the farmers in Clearfield county. Two methods are being employed to combat these insects: (1) By picking the beetles off the plants. (2) By application of an insect powder to the vines.

The first method is laborious, except in small patches, but has the advantage of being entirely safe. A small second crop of bugs usually follows the first picking due to hatching of eggs that are left on the leaves.

Paris Green is a very effective poison and is one commonly used in the county. It is a combination of arsenic and copper, and the commercial product usually contains a small amount of soluble arsenic which will burn the foliage. To reduce this effect a small amount of freshly slaked lime should be added to either a solution or powder application of paris green.

Arsenate of lead is much less injurious to potato foliage and has the advantage of sticking better than paris green. It may be prepared either in powder or paste form. Both forms are equally effective when used in the proper proportions. Arsenate of lead is largely displacing paris green as an insect poison.

The following formulas give the proper proportions in which to use these poisons:

- (1) 1/4 pound paris green
2 lbs. freshly slaked lime
50 gallons of water, or Bordeaux mixture.
- (2) 3 pounds Arsenate of Lead (paste) or
1 1/2 pounds Arsenate of Lead (powder)
50 gallons of water, or Bordeaux mixture.

The vines should be thoroughly sprayed or sprinkled with either of above solutions.

The Bordeaux mixture mentioned in the above formula is a standard fungicide and is the most efficient spray for potatoes. It consists of caustic lime, copper sulphate, or blue vitriol and water. The proportion for potatoes is:

- 5 lbs. lime
5 lbs. copper sulphate
50 gallons of water.
- It is prepared in the following manner. Suspend 5 pounds of copper sulphate crystal in 5 gallons of water, until dissolved, this usually requires several hours. Add to this solution 20 gallons of water.

The time is placed in a receptacle and covered with enough water to slake it, after which 25 gallons of lime water are made.

The solutions should be thoroughly stirred, and poured through a strainer at the same time. This serves to both strain and mix the solutions. Bordeaux should be bluish white in color and should be applied as soon as possible after being made.

Thoroughly spraying with Bordeaux is highly recommended as it not only protects the vines against early and late blight, but is believed to stimulate tuber formation.

To protect against blight, spraying should begin when the plants are from 6 to 8 inches high, and applications should be made every two or three weeks.

To use Bordeaux effectively a high power sprayer is necessary. It is difficult to reach all parts of the plant with sprinkling can.

The thorough use of Bordeaux mixture with the addition of arsenate of lead, when potato bugs appear is considered the best method of controlling late blight and potato bugs, the two worst enemies of the potato crop.

Bulletin 140 issued by the Pennsylvania Experiment Station, State College, Pa., deals entirely with potato diseases. It will be sent free upon application.

Thomas Dawson and family, of Scranton, is visiting his brother-in-law, J. J. Corrigan on Fourth street.

T. H. Ladden, of Ridgway, state fire marshal, is a business caller in Clearfield.

Late last week British and New Zealand soldiers gained a foothold in the village itself. A series of German counter-attacks failed to dislodge them. Clinging desperately to the make-shift barriers of the south-east part of the town--barriers for the most part made by the crumbled houses--the British force stubbornly repulsed their assailants, and thoroughly pushed them back inch by inch. Machine guns fire was incessant, save when the forces from both sides swarmed out of their barriers and with clubs, rifles and bayonets swept back and forth in hand-to-hand grips. Threatened for weeks, the Germans had time to make emplacements in houses for their machine guns and to buttress up their positions with concrete and steel.

They turned a wind mill on the northwest of the town into a veritable fortress, from which machine guns rattled death. Nearby was a cemetery and among the graves of the dead were placed the terrible modern death dealing instruments of war. The cemetery is now a shamble above the earth.

Turks Evacuate Town

Berlin Admits Loss
Berlin, July 26.—(By United Press)—"After stubborn fight, the British have established themselves in Pozieres," a German statement declared today of the war office. The enemy's attacks were repulsed in Fourneauz woods near Longueval and Trones Woods, and it was claimed by the war office that "a small advance against the French forces entrenched on Hill 304."

Russians Advancing
Petrograd July 26.—The Grand Duke Nicholas and his army have completed nearly one-fourth of the journey to Angora the eastern terminus of the railroad which leads to Constantinople, the immediate objective of the Russian advance. Russian troops are forcing back the demoralized Turkish forces, and estimated to be almost the record for quick advance. The greater portion of the advance has been almost as of a marching army in peaceful times.

Enguan is about to fall into Russian hands, and apparently the Grand Duke's troops will have little difficulty in pressing onward. So far the Grand Duke has made a phenomenal advance inasmuch as no railroads have aided in maintaining his supplies.

RESCUERS TRYING TO GET BODIES OF ENTRAPPED MEN

Electric Mine Lamps Light Way for Rescue Work

Cleveland, July 26.—(By United Press)—With eight electric mine lamps were secured today, 36 hours after a score of lives were snuffed out in the tunnel disaster, the rescue work was resumed. Attempts were made to recover the bodies of the workmen trapped and suffocated in the death hole under lake Erie Monday night.

Flags furl at half mast today in honor of the ten men who had tried to save their fellow workmen. A committee of federal, county and municipal representatives was to hold a meeting and try to fix the responsibility. The investigators will try to find out why no precautions were taken against a possible accident in the tunnel. There were no safety first devices, or first aid implements.

FLOOD CAUSES GREAT LOSS AT TAMAQUA

Business Section of the Town Flooded During Entire Night

Tamaqua, Pa., July 26.—(By United Press)—Tamaqua was carried back to the days of 1850 last night when about 10 o'clock the business section was turned from a modern thoroughfare into a raging torrent, dealing destruction in its wake. All day yesterday the rain fell incessantly, and the Wabash river and bungalow dams near here overflowed their banks, and sent a river through the business section of the town, from 10 o'clock last night until 8 o'clock this morning, when the water began to recede. The estimated damage will reach $100,000 to $150,000.

S. S. McCURE TO BE DEPORTED FROM ENGLAND

Activities in Germany is Given as Reason of Act

London, July 26.—(By United Press)—British authorities today informed the American Ambassador Page that S. S. McCure, American publisher must sail from England on Saturday. McCure was held on board the Philadelphia when that liner arrived at Liverpool yesterday for several hours. Then Page obtained permission for him to remain on shore until Saturday because of ill health. It was learned that the deportation order was issued because of what Berlin authorities state was "his activities while in Germany."

SECTION OF THE COLUMBIA VALLEY FLOODED LAST NIGHT

Bloomsburg, Pa., July 26.—(By United Press)—One of the worst floods in many years visited this section of the Columbia valley last night, owing to the heavy downfall of rain, which at times was a regular cloudburst. Man streams overflowed their banks, and in some of the lower sections the water raised to a depth of four feet. No trains have been able to enter the town, and the loss is estimated to reach $200,000 of dollars.

BOUQUETS AND BRICKBATS.

The Get Acquainted Edition brought forth several press comments which are appreciated.

REFLECTS CREDIT.

The big Get Acquainted Edition of The Clearfield Progress was put in circulation yesterday. It is a 56-page number, full of historical, biographical, commercial and interesting information relative to all parts and all classes of Clearfield County business, professional and active life. It is a very creditable enterprise and reflects much credit on the promoters and on the office of publication. It is likewise well worth preserving—Clearfield Republican.

HIGHLY CREDITABLE PUBLICATION.

The Clearfield Progress yesterday issued their "Get Acquainted" Edition and it proved to be a highly creditable publication. It consisted of 56 pages and contained an interesting history of the development of Clearfield and Clearfield County. It also contained the pictures of many of our prominent citizens. Our contemporary has every reason to feel proud over the success of the venture.—Public Spirit.

STILL DYSPEPTIC.

The Progress' "Get Acquainted" Edition is a big paper, full of portraits which are hard to make fit the persons for whom they were intended. The edition was issued by a firm that doesn't do any charitable work and The Progress isn't to be held responsible for the errors in the edition.—Curwensville Herald.

PROGRESS WELL NAMED.

The Clearfield Progress "Get Acquainted" Edition has reached the Gazette and Bulletin. It is an agreeable surprise. There are fifty-six pages of real, up-to-date newspaper—the kind one would expect of a big metropolitan plant rather than that of an interior city—It is a big advertisement for The Progress—an evidence of real prosperity—but a bigger advertisement for Clearfield town. The Progress is well named.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

A FINE EDITION.

We congratulate the Clearfield Progress on the excellency of its "Get Acquainted" Edition issued on Thursdays of last week. Its 56 pages, nicely illustrated, gave a valuable fund of information along various lines relating to the interests of Clearfield and other parts of the county.—Philipsburg Daily Journal.

CREDIT TO TOWN.

The Clearfield Progress, one of the progressive papers of that thriving town, issued a large "Get Acquainted" Edition last Thursday, July 13. It certainly is a credit to the management of The Progress and to the town. It consists of 56 pages full of photographs of people from this whole section, including historical, biographical, commercial and interesting information from all parts of Clearfield County and Philipsburg. We congratulate the Progress and hope that it may be the means of putting that thriving little city on the map, the same as Philipsburg.—Philipsburg Ledger.

CLEVERLY GOTTEN UP.

The Clearfield Progress issued a 56-page "Get Acquainted" Edition Thursday that was very cleverly gotten up. It contained besides ads, cuts and writeups on several prominent residents of Clearfield County.—Jersey Shore Herald.

Today's Geographic Study of The Great European War Zone

Following the news of the arrival of the sixth contingent of Russian troops in France, the National Geographic society has issued a war geography bulletin on Archangel as the probable port of embarkation for these subjects of the Czar and for any others who during the next two months may be sent to join the French in the trenches of Champagne.

"Supposed to be open to navigation from May to October, but actually free of ice for barely three months of that time, Archangel could not have been the starting point for Russian troops which reached Marseilles early in April. These more recent arrivals, however, probably avoided the long trip overland from European Russia to Manchuria and thence through the sea of Japan, the China Seas, the Indian Ocean, the Red Sea, the Suez Canal and the Mediterranean, a journey of 17,500 miles. The Archangel voyage is simpler, shorter and safer.

"A town of less than 40,000 inhabitants at the outbreak of the war, Archangel is Russia's most accessible European port of communication with her allies. It has increased enormously in importance since the declarations of war in August 1914.

"Archangel first came in touch with the outside world in 1553 when the English sailor, Sir Richard Chancellor, while attempting a Northeast passage to India, arrived at the black haven on the sea appropriately called White. Ivan the Terrible summoned the stranger to Moscow, 700 miles to the south, and welcomed him to Russia. Thirty years later a town was established at this harbor and for the next hundred years it was the Muscovite kingdom's only seaport, the chief doorway of trade with England and Holland.

"When Peter the Great began to build and beautify his new capital, St. Petersburg, he diverted much of Archangel's trade to the Baltic, but there was consolation for the White Sea port in being designated the capital of the province of the same name, a province equalling in square miles the aggregate areas of France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, England, Scotland and Wales, but with less than half a million population. Of all this vast territory the area of arable land is less than 1-200 square miles, three-fourths of which is given over to pasturage. Considerably more than half of the province consists of extensive tundras, swamps, lakes and barren, rocky plains, while a third of the land is overgrown with forests, the property of the Crown. On the tundras, which are covered with lichens, reindeer find excellent pasturage, while the richer grazing land supports the splendid Holmgor cattle, a breed attributed to Peter the Great who crossed the native herds with cattle imported from Holland. The only vegetables grown in this part of the Russian empire are turnips and potatoes.

"The city of Archangel stretches for five miles on the right bank of the Dvina river, which at this point, nearly 50 miles from its mouth, is two miles wide. In recent years the importance of the port has been magnified by the Duke of Alexander of Wurttemberg canal, which connects the Dvina with Petrograd, via the River Neva, and also with the vast basin of the Volga, the Mississippi river of Europe. The Dvina is itself a considerable waterway, being a hundred miles longer than the Hudson river, and with its tributary, the Sukhona, more than twice the length of that famous American waterway. Its flow is very slow, as the average fall per mile is not more than nine inches.

"Archangel gets its name from the Convent of Archangel Michael, at the south end of the town. In the principal cathedral of the city is a wooden cross fourteen feet high, carved by Peter the Great, who, it will be remembered, learned the use of the mallet and chisel while working as a shipwright in Holland after he ascended the throne.

"A famous religious institution reached by way of Archangel is the Solovetski monastery, one of the largest and wealthiest in Russia. Every year from 10,000 to 15,000 pilgrims pass through the port on their way to this retreat situated 166 miles distant, on a small island in the White Sea. The monastery is enclosed by lofty walls dating back to the sixteenth century, while the institution itself was established more than fifty years before Columbus discovered America."

BASEBALL BUNTS

NOTES OF THE MINOR LEAGUES

Denison, the 1915 pennant winner in the Western Association, is again showing the way in that organization.

The Texas league teams are staging a corking good race, with Waco, Houston and Fort Worth packed in together at the top.

Forty-two games postponed on account of bad weather gives an idea of what "Old Probs" has handed to the Central league so far this season.

Recent Western league averages show "Hank" Butler, of Denver, the leading batsman, and Marty O'Toole, of Omaha, leading the list of pitchers.

Poor attendance at the home ground, caused the Burlington club to toss up the sponge and forfeit its Central league franchise.

The Kansas City Blues are showing some strength this season, putting up a hot fight every day in an effort to cop the American Association flag.

The Longhampden New York State League champions seem to be all set to repeat this season. The "Browers" are now out in front and traveling at a fast clip.

Harry Wolter, who is pasturing with the Los Angeles Pacific Coast league team this season, is showing the big league stuff that made him famous.

It looks to be all Nashville and New Orleans in the Southern league this year. Chattanooga has been coming forward of late, but the Vicksburg and Pecos seem to be the class.

Pitchers Tom Rogers of the Nashville Southern league and Cy Young of the World's record holding Cy Young and Adie Joss who led in pitched no-run, no-hit, no-error games.

The Original Food-Drink for all ages. More nourishing than tea, coffee, etc. In the home, or at Hotels and Cafes. Substitutes for YOU Same Price.

The Augusta team, which finished at the top in the first half of the South Atlantic league season, is making a strong bid for second half honors. Unless the Georgians are stopped pretty soon there will be no post-season series in the Sally circuit.

Without the services of dependable heavies, "Iron Man" Joe McGinnity has had to jump in and pitch overtime in order to keep his Butte team up in the Northwestern league race.

Montreal has made a rapid climb in the International league race. Buffalo, Providence and Baltimore, the top liners, will have to keep their weather eye peeled on the Royals.

Worcester and Springfield are putting up a hot battle for the Eastern league batting honors. An odd feature of Springfield's recent work was topping the league in batting while running last in fielding.

When Jerry Edginger, the veteran Third League umpire, reached his fiftieth birthday a few days ago he made his last decision in the league by calling himself out for good. It is said that Jerry retires with considerable bank roll accumulated as a minor league umpire.

NATIONAL CONCLAVE OF WOMEN VOTERS.

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 26.—With delegates in attendance from twelve states and the territory of Alaska, the National Council of Women Voters assembled in Cheyenne today for its fourth annual convention. The membership of the council is confined to the women of the enfranchised states. The organization is strictly non-partisan and aims especially to educate women to use the ballot, the interests of the best legislation, and to aid in extending equal suffrage throughout the country. Mrs. Emma Smith De Voe, of Tacoma, is the president of the council and will preside over the four days' session.

WALLACETON

Well boys and fellow citizens the big Methodist Picnic Day will soon be held in our town. No preparations for any base ball. Should this big day be marred by no national sporting game; the crowd would not be so enthusiastic over the occasion. We will make an effort to have some fast clubs from neighboring towns cross bats on our ground. Some of the trolley clubs, Bigler, Woodland, or any of the handy clubs. This big time is a benefit to our M. E. Church and our people should put vim into energy and let out the spirit of the good will. Hurrah boys, come to the ball park. Let's not be old men. Let's wash in the fabled fountain and start the ball a rolling. Any clubs wishing to play here will see in this paper who will have charge of this end of the program by the next few days. Let all clubs be willing to ask us about big picnic day.

Quite a bunch of our boys were looking around Philipsburg on Saturday evening, guess there must be some attraction.

Joe Condriet has completed the excavating for the foundation of the new Vulcan Trading Co. store to be erected in our city in the near future. The location is in the center of the town and will greatly improve the looks of our burg. W. J. Usher, of Clearfield, is manager of this business throughout this section.

David Milligan has business at the burg on Saturday evening.

Our new store keeper, Nello Glickpatrick, is the proud papa of a bouncing big baby boy. Nello says after while he will have a new clerk for his store.

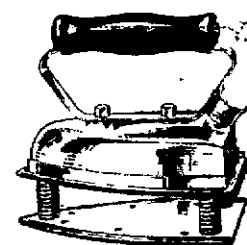

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Comfort, of Pittsburgh, are welcome visitors at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Reidy in this place. Mr. Comfort, one of our friends and who materially helped our base ball club for several seasons by his fast playing and hard hitting, holds the position of coach of all athletics and professor of science at the Fifth Avenue High School at Pittsburgh, where for several seasons under his skilled coaching and knowledge of base ball his Fifth Avenue club has won the Smoky City's base ball championship, for which he now wears the medal. Mr. Comfort is a good, free all around sort of a fellow, making a host of friends wherever his acquaintance extends. His several years of continued success at the Fifth Avenue High School tells plainly of his ability to successfully fill the requirements of this responsible calling. His better half, one of our town girls, is held in high esteem by every one forming her acquaintance.

READY FOR LAND DRAWING.

Spokane, Wash., July 26.—Thousands of home-seekers are on the tip of expectation today, for within another twenty-four hours they will learn their luck in the matter of securing a desirable homestead in the Colville reservation recently declared open to settlement. John McPhaul, superintendent of the opening and sale of the reservation lands, has completed all arrangements for the great drawing, which will commence tomorrow. Cards containing the names of more than 20,000 men and women who filed at the five registration points, have been placed in sealed cans and are now in the custody of Superintendent McPhaul. Tomorrow morning the cans will be publicly opened and the drawing will commence. The person whose name is first drawn will be given first choice in the selection of a homestead. The drawing will continue until all the parcels of land have been allotted.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

How can a twelve volt generator be used with a six volt storage battery and six volt lamps?

It is a rather difficult proposition to use a twelve volt generator with a six volt battery. A twelve volt generator, if its fields are connected in series, can sometimes be changed to a six volt by connecting the field in parallel. The generator can also be made to develop six volts by cutting the speed in two. When this is done the generator, battery and lamp will work together, although the capacity of the generator will be limited to a considerable extent.

Can you tell me how to line up the front wheels of a car?

In lining up the front wheels the first thing is to make sure that the wheel bearings are properly adjusted. They should be just tight enough so that there is no side play in the wheels; but, on the other hand, they should not be so tight that the wheels bind and do not turn freely. This done, take a long stick or rod that will reach from the inner edge of one rim across to the inner edge of the other. Then measure the distance between the rim edges horizontally back of the center of the wheel. Mark this distance on the stick, and then try it on the rims horizontally in front of the wheel centers. The front distance should be one-fourth inch to three-eighths inch less than the distance across the back of the hubs. If you find these distances are not correct you can get the proper adjustment by taking up or letting out on the steering cross rod, which parallels the axle and runs across just back of it. First loosen the lock nut at one of the ends, then take out the pin that goes through the steering arm and yoke and screw the yoke out or in, as the case requires. Then check the wheel alignment again and tighten the lock nut.

My generator has stopped charging. I have tested the fuse and found it all right. I took the relay off, cleaned the brushes and commutator, then when it was started it charged, but the engine cut idle for a day, and when started again it failed to charge. On pressing the platinum points together on the automatic relay it did not show any discharge on the ammeter, but when I lighted the ammeter shows discharge. Can you tell me anything to do in this case?

Although you do not give sufficient data to diagnose accurately the trouble, the majority of similar complaints are due to loose connections. Therefore it is suggested that the first possible cause of the trouble is a break in the generator charging line. A loose connection at the relay or a loose or broken connection or broken wire in the generator charging line will, of course, prevent the generator from charging the battery and would prevent a discharge reading on the ammeter when the relay contact points are placed in contact.

You state that you have examined the relay fuse and found it all right. However, it is suggested that you pinch the fuse clips a little closer together to be sure that these clips are making good contact with the ends of the fuse.

A third possible cause of this trouble may be a small quantity of dirt or dust between the relay contacts. A very fine piece of sandpaper should be drawn lightly between the contacts and all dust carefully removed. A very small quantity of dust lodged between the points might prevent them from making good contact and would therefore prevent the generator from charging.

Could like to know the principle of operation of a gear pump. Will one be against a pressure of five kilograms?

The principle of a gear pump is simple, as it consists merely of two gears rotating within a chamber. The pump chamber is so arranged that the side of the two gears coming into mesh are in the intake compartment and coming out of mesh in the exhaust compartment. The oil is led in and as the gears come into mesh it is picked up in the clearance space between the teeth and thrown out on the other side. By a pressure of five kilograms it is presumed that you mean a pressure of five kilograms per square centimeter. This is equivalent to about seventy pounds per square inch, which is slightly above the capacity of the usual gear pump.

Which motor develops the most power, the valve in the head, the L head or the T head? Providing they are of equal size, how much power does the one develop over the other?

The valve in the head motor is generally credited with giving slightly more power for the same size and weight of motor than either the L head or T head. The T head comes second in the matter of power for piston displacement. The L head gives slightly less power, but weighs less than the T head. This, of course, is assuming they are equally well made and well designed. As to the per cent of advantage of the different types, this depends entirely on such things as timing valve sizes, port sizes, carburetion and a dozen other things.

I have heard that there is an acid solution or bath used by brass workers, clockmakers and others in which brass parts may be dipped and the brass will not be affected by the acid, which will however, remove all dirt, grease and tarnish and the brass will come out of the bath bright and clean. Can you give me the formula for this acid bath and instructions for its use, advising, also, whether it must be kept in lead or glass containers?

The parts to be cleaned are first dipped into a solution of hot lye and then dipped into what is known as a bright brass dip. This is made up as follows: Two parts sulphuric acid to one part nitric acid with a tablespoonful of salt to each three and one-half gallons of acid. Care must be used in mixing. Put the sulphuric acid in a jar first, then add the nitric acid. Let this stand until it stops working or fuming, then add the salt. The parts to be dipped should be dipped first into the hot lye solution and then into the acid solution. Immediately after the acid dip the parts should be rinsed in cold water and given a second dip into the acid and then into the cold water to rinse them off. After this they should be dipped into very hot water and thrown into sawdust to dry.

How can a machine with four square feet of head resistance travel faster than one with six square feet if the motor speeds are the same, as are also the weight of the machines, horsepower, gear ratios and size of wheels?

If the motor speeds are both the same and the gear ratios and size of wheels are both the same both machines must travel at the same speed regardless of any other factors.

Why do some of the manufacturers leave the intake closed for some time after the exhaust valve is closed? Do they not cut down on volumetric efficiency by doing so?

The reason for the delayed opening of the intake is to create a vacuum in the cylinder which will cause the inlet gases to rush in and fill the cylinder. It takes a noticeable amount of suction to overcome the inertia of the gases, and this vacuum is left for the purpose of overcoming this inertia.

MAN WHO DIED ON OPERATING

TABLE IS ALIVE TODAY
London, July 1—(By Mail)—Lance Corporal Mayes, Queen's Westminster regiment, lives today to be able to say that he died.

A German shell clipped off part of Mayes' right arm at Ypres last Christmas. Eventually he landed in a London hospital with a stump of an arm that threatened blood poison. An operation became necessary.

Under an anaesthetic the soldier's heart collapsed and ceased to beat. The patient was dead. The surgeon in charge tried a quick experiment. He made an incision large enough to admit his hand in Mayes' side. He lifted the diaphragm, reached the heart and gently massaged the organ with his fingers. The heart responded and resumed pulsations.

Mayes is now on the road to complete recovery. In another month he will be wearing an artificial arm and learning to use it in a trade which he will be taught by the government.

SAM BERNARD, LAUGH PRODUCER, AT OPERA HOUSE

Celebrated Comedian Makes Screen Debut in a Typical Characterization, "Poor Schmaltz."

Sam Bernard, the irrepressible king of comedy, whom the Famous Players Film Co. induced to present his unequalled mirth-provoking talents on the screen, makes his first appearance before the motion picture public at Opera House tomorrow in a four-part film travesty, entitled "Poor Schmaltz."

This great comedian, in his first film impersonation, introduces a new type of comedy to the screen. As "Poor Schmaltz" he renders one of the most laughable characterizations of his brilliant career as the foremost exponent of eccentric comedy on the American stage. As the persecuted and persistent wooer of an American heiress, he presents one of the most humorous spectacles ever seen on the screen, and "Poor Schmaltz" may truly be termed Sam Bernard "in Dutch."

It requires four hilarious reels to complete "Poor Schmaltz's" distressing but exasperating funny adventures on the screen, and the humor grows until one is well-nigh exhausted with laughter.

The Famous Players Film Co. has selected "Poor Schmaltz" as the title of Mr. Bernard's first screen impersonation, because that was the character-name borne by the illustrious comedian in his greatest stage successes.

"Poor Schmaltz" was designed for laughing purposes only, and in this direction it succeeds howlingly. This great comedy attraction may be termed the most pretentious humorous feature ever presented on the screen, and will be seen at Opera House tomorrow.

MATTERS BABY CENTRAL FIGURE IN THIRD TRIAL

Mrs. Matters Charged With
Foisting Child As Spurious
Heir, Goes On Trial

CHILD BORN TO CANADIAN GIRL

Chicago, July 26.—(By United Press)—The famous Matters baby, who was cooed, gurgled and played with her toes through two court trials already, was the central figure in another court proceeding before Federal Judge Landis here today. "Margaret Bryan" who swore in court that the baby girl is here because she was the unwed war bride of the village blacksmith of her Canadian hometown, appeared to plead with the judge to let her have the tiny mite. The rich Mrs. Annie Dollie Ledgerwood Matters also claims to be the mother of the baby.

Mrs. Matters, charged with foisting the baby on her husband's estate as a spurious heir, is to go to trial again July 31, this time charged with perjury in connection with probate court records in the case. She was acquitted, several months ago, of the charge of foisting the child on the Matters estate.

The Matters baby case, to date, has unfolded a story that would furnish a do Mattheus with plots for a dozen novels. It began when December mated with June—when Frederick Matters, Arcola, Ill., moving picture magnate, a man nearing seventy, married Anna Dollie Ledgerwood, a woman of twenty.

And then Matters died, leaving a $200,000 estate. A few weeks after his death, Mrs. Matters appeared with a baby. It was hers, she said, born to her at Misericordia hospital, at Ottawa, Canada. Other heirs to the estate questioned her claim of a posthumous heir. In the first place, they said, parenthood was a physical impossibility to Matters.

Physicians came from the hospital and testified for Mrs. Matters. It was her baby, they said. Then, months later, Dr. L. C. Emile Bernard, chief obstetrician of the hospital, came to Chicago and said his conscience had troubled him, that he wanted to change his story.

This time he said he was telling the truth. The baby was not Mrs. Matters' at all. It was born to Margaret Bryan, a young Canadian girl, who had surrendered to love when the village blacksmith in her town went away to war with the Canadian contingent. The baby was taken from Margaret at its birth, Dr. Bernard said, and taken to a room where Mrs. Matters lay. Margaret was told her baby had died at birth. She lay helplessly and sadly in her cot in the public ward while Mrs. Matters, known to the "poor ward" as the "millionaire lady," crooned over the child.

Dr. Bernard detailed the surgical precautions that had been taken to keep it appear Mrs. Matters was the mother.

When the trial of Mrs. Matters on a criminal charge began, the state brought a surprise. It brought Margaret Bryan to Chicago, and the pretty Canadian girl told the jury her story. But it did not convict Mrs. Matters.

Then Margaret went to Federal Judge Landis, and told him she wanted her baby. A federal status prohibits "immigration" of a child without consent of its parents. If Margaret was the real mother, the law applied to the Matters baby. So Judge Landis ordered the child taken from Mrs. Matters, placed in a local institution, and visiting hours so arranged that Margaret could see it each morning and Mrs. Matters each afternoon. There the case rested when Mrs. Matters went to trial again today.

Both women have "mothered" the child since it was taken from Mrs. Matters. Both have sought to win its love. It is about a year old now—a girl baby—and seems to know each of its "mothers" equally well. If Margaret wins it, when Judge Landis gives his decision after the present trial, it will go to a little Canadian town and live in comparative poverty. If Mrs. Matters wins, then the baby will have silks and satins and automobiles and debutante's dances.

We sell Edison and Victor Talking Machines. SHEEDER MUSIC HOUSE, 28 North Second Street Clearfield, Pa.

NOTICE

The regular W. C. T. U. meeting will be held tomorrow evening at 7.30 in the Y. M. C. A. All members are urged to be present as there is important business to be transacted.

Rev. W. V. Ganoe, a former minister of Curwensville, now on the superannuated list, visited his son Lieutenant Ganoe at the home of C. S. Russell this week. Last sabbath forenoon he occupied the M. E. pulpit and gave a talk on the education of the colored race in the south, he having spent last winter at Ashville, N. C. and gave that question considerable study and thought. Lieutenant Ganoe has been transferred from the army to instructor at West Point, and will leave for that point shortly. He had recently returned from service in Honolulu.

Miss Mae Kline returned today from a trip to Philadelphia, New York City and Washington, D. C.

GENERAL DODD RETIRED AFTER 40 YRS. SERVICE

Dare-Devil Dodd Lead Cavalry
Brigade of Punitive Expedition
Into Mexico

WON FAME IN INDIAN FIGHTS

Washington, July 26.—The official life of a gallant old warrior expired today, when, by reason of the fact that this is the sixty-fourth anniversary of his birth, Brigadier General George A. Dodd, the commander of the cavalry brigade of the punitive expedition into Mexico last spring, was retired from active service.

In the ordinary routine of military affairs Gen. Dodd would have been retired with the rank of colonel. Only a few weeks ago, by order of the President, the higher rank of brigadier-general was conferred upon him in recognition of his distinguished services in Mexico, particularly his cavalry dash at Guerrero last March, when he went into successful action against a superior force of bandits after a ride of 55 miles in seventeen hours.

In the forty years of his service in the regulars, "Dare-Devil" Dodd, as he is familiarly known, was seen as much hard fighting as any officer of the service. He is a native of Pennsylvania and was appointed to the Military Academy from that state. Immediately after his graduation in 1876 he was assigned as a second lieutenant to the famous Third Cavalry, the command that has seen more hard service on the border in the past four years than any regiment in the army.

At West Point his classmates included Hugh L. Scott, now a major-general and Chief of the General Staff; Brig. Gen. Ernest A. Garlington, the Inspector-General of the army, and Herbert W. Slocum, now commanding the Twelfth Cavalry, the attack upon which at Columbus, N. M., was the immediate cause of the expedition being sent into Mexico last spring.

The first ten years of Gen. Dodd's service were ten years of never-ceasing activity for the most part in actions against the hostile Indians of the Far West. He served through the Powder River expedition of 1877, helped to keep the Indians of the Red Cloud Agency quiet in 1878, won the commendation of his superiors for gallant service in the Ute expedition of 1879, was in command of a famous company of scouts in the Arizona outbreaks of 1883, and helped suppress Indian disturbances in what is now the State of Oklahoma in November, 1893.

Gen. Dodd was a captain in the Fourth Cavalry in the Spanish War. He was in the battle of San Juan and participated in the siege and operations against Santiago. He was commended for gallantry in the face of the enemy in the Santiago campaign. When he returned to the United States in the latter part of 1898 he was sent to Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., for a tour of duty, which lasted but a few weeks, when he was ordered to the Philippines, where he participated in the expedition sent into northern Luzon under Maj. Gen. Young. In this expedition he took part in twelve battles, and again won the commendation of his superiors for gallant and meritorious work. He was recommended by Gen. Young for brevet major for gallant conduct in action at San Nicolas, P. I., and subsequently Gen. Wheaton for conspicuous gallantry in action at Aligangan, P. I.

Gen. Dodd returned to the United States from the Philippines in 1901 and again was sent for a tour of duty at Fort Ethan Allen. He was ordered West, in 1903, to command Fort Assiniboine, Mont. On July 28, 1904, he was made a lieutenant colonel and assigned as second in command of the Tenth Cavalry, one of the two famous negro mounted commands of the regular army. He was made a colonel in April, 1905, and put in command of the Twelfth Cavalry.

He was commanding the Second Cavalry Brigade on the border at the time of the Columbus raid. When President Wilson ordered Gen. Funston to send a punitive expedition into Mexico he promptly gave the command of the forces to Dodd, for he knew, as his brother officers expressed it at the time, "that old Dodd was the man who could successfully cope with the Mexican bandits if anybody could."

Walter Brome, of Brookville, who is interested in developing a paint seam and mine along Anderson creek, near the Milligan siding, was in town for a brief period Tuesday. He gave out the information that his siding to the mine had been completed and that a car would be placed for loading a test shipment sometime during the week. He is confident that he will receive a very satisfactory analysis, and that final work will soon commence on the ground for a permanent factory.

Augustus W. Thompson, born and raised in Curwensville and a resident for many years, put one over on his friends and relatives. Gus was considered to be in the old bachelor class, but without any notice to those who ought to have been in touch with his private and domestic affairs, he quietly wedded Miss Dolly Marie Dunmire, daughter of Z. A. Dunmire, of Summer Hill, near Portage, Pa., the event taking place on May 24th. He is a brother of Mrs. Harry Brown of this place and of Roll B. Thompson, of Clearfield.

CURWENSVILLE

Rev. Joseph Cooke, pastor of the First Baptist church, spent Tuesday in DuBois, attending a meeting of the W. C. T. U.

Curwensville baseball enthusiasts are scheduled to cross bats with a club hailing from Surveyor on Friday afternoon at the Athletic Park grounds.

C. F. Hayes, the Bridgeport miller, accompanied by one of his sons, motored to several towns in Centre county on Tuesday. They expect to spend several days in that locality.

The Curwensville National bank directors held their annual monthly meeting in the bank building on Tuesday night. Considerable important business was transacted.

Mr. and Mrs. John Marcus and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bestis, all of Erie, motored to Curwensville on Saturday and spent Sunday and Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Blair, Anderson street.

Miss Aline Blake left today for Emporium where she will visit a school friend for a few days, after which both young ladies will motor to Olean, N. Y., and other points, calling on other school chums and acquaintances.

"Singin' Skule" by professional and local talent, is booked to come off at the opera house on Friday evening of this week. The proceeds will go to the L. A. S. of the M. E. church, under whose auspices the entertainment is being held.

Pastor Hawkins of Grace Lutheran church, wishes to announce that there will be preaching in his church on Saturday evening. Sunday will be holy communion, after which some half dozen new members will be formally admitted to full membership.

Since the demise of Samuel S. Moore, the Second ward has been without an assessor. There are several applicants for the position, namely: Henry Stockbridge and John I. Thompson. Your correspondent is informed that Judge Bell will make the appointment sometime during the month of August.

A Russian-Polish priest preached to the men of Summit sole leather tannery in front of that plant on Tuesday noon. The tenor of his remarks were along the lines of the horrors of the European war and the havoc it was working in the overriden countries, from which a good many of the employees of that plant hail.

Curwensville lodge Knights of Pythias expect to have a very good and an unusual session in their rooms on Thursday evening. Visitors from Clearfield and Glen Richey are expected to be present in numbers. The Knights rank will be conferred on three Esquires, after which several good speeches are booked to take place. All members of the order are most cordially invited to be present.

BUY A YARD OF LUMBER

DEPARTMENT STORE SIGN

Chicago, July 26.—(By United Press)—Along with fancy ribbons, women's silk hose and sport shirts, lumber can now be bought over the counter at department stores, it was discovered here today.

It can be bought by the yard, odd lengths can be secured in the bargain basement, and various kinds of fancy grains are carried for the more particular lumber customers.

The reported went out to investigate. Entering a loop department store he queried the floor walker who conducted him to the "lumber yard."

"Yes, this is the lumber counter," said the sales girl, and the reporter learned that he could secure wood with which to make a kitchen cabinet or he might buy a piece with a knot in it out of which he could model a wooden leg.

"Lumber at three cents a stick," and "Buy a yard of Lumber" are examples of the bargain cards placed at the lumber counters.

Department store lumber yards are a reality in thirty six large cities in the country the store people here declared today. One western firm makes a specialty of jobbing this lumber, supplying odd lengths and short pieces of lumber that would otherwise go to waste.
